

Upstate New York

Setting the scene

We have continued to work with a number of distributors in the USA - Not just establishing a growing install base but also developing our technology with them.

Since having the product range UL accredited, we have also now had the systems tested under SRCC as well as work alongside our New York distributor on a long term, multi system monitoring project with Nyserda.

This same distributor has been able to use these 'real world' results when selling the SAHP range to their customers.

The latest project sees a SAHP 300 being installed in a family home north of New York city, and with the recent SRCC certification, the home owner can apply for a tax rebate to reduce the overall costs of the system.
